PERSONAL.
Mrs. "Squire" Moore, of Dixon, Ky., is visiting her son, Mr. W. H. Maury.

Mrs. James A. Rowe is quite sick with typhoid fever. She is at the residence of Mrs. Gibson.

Willie Miller and sister, Lucie, are pupils of Hartford College. They board at Mr. H. C. Berryman's.

Little Bobbie, son of Hon. C. D. Walker, is quite sick at this writing, but is thought to be improving.

Thos. Baird, the popular young clerk at the Hartford House, was visiting relatives at Island Station for a day or two this week.

Our young friend, L. J. Kahn, Esq., returning from the wide-spread tour of Hartford, (Henn & Co.), Louisville, was in town a day or two this week.

We have a brand-new "devil" in our office, in the person of W. S. Jarboe. He is a good one, and will visit the patrons of the Herald every Wednesday morning with the Herald.

Mr. J. W. Beach, representing the wholesale drug house of Tarrant & Barber, Evansville, Ind., has been in town for several days past, the guest of the Hartford House.

The many friends of Rev. T. E. Riechy, Princeton, Ky., will regret to learn of the illness of his entire family. We trust the illness is not serious and health will soon return.

A. H. Stankard, formerly of Princeton, Ky., has removed to Greenville, Ky., and is engaged in the tannery business. He is an old-time friend of ours, and we wish him the success he so richly merits in his new location.

Dr. S. P. Coleman and wife, of Beaver Run, visited us yesterday, and after looking through our establishment, renewed their subscription to the end of 1882. Reader, come-thou and do likewise.

We have recently learned that Mr. N. J. Rains, of Rosine, has changed the name of his operations to Marshall county, Tenn. We have had the pleasure of feeling personally acquainted with Mr. Rains for many years, and at all times have found him to be an upright and honorable citizen. Mr. Rains commenced the study of medicine in 1871, and after taking two courses of lectures in Louisville, Ky., graduated with high honors. Leaving at Rosine, in this county, he commenced the practice of medicine, and by close application to business he soon gained an enviable reputation and a large and lucrative practice. In 1880-81 he took a post graduate course in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, Pa. The removal of Dr. Rains causes Ohio county to lose one of her best citizens and an honorable member of the medical profession, one equal in his profession by few and surpassed by none. We regret to lose him, and trust he may be properly appreciated in his new home.

Call on Tracy for all kinds of Farming Implements.

On Hand—Ten barrels Homestead Fertilizer, at the Red Front.

Tracy keeps the best Plows in the market; all steel, and can be sharpened.

You can get an A No. 1 Sowing Machine for Twenty Dollars at Anderson's Bazaar.

For Grass Seed of all kinds, including Seed Oats, Onions, Onion Sets, Garden and Flower Seeds, go to the Red Front.

Died, near Hartford, Ky., February 8, 1882, Jennie, wife of Lewis Griffin, of color. She was a member of the M. E. Church, in good standing at the time of her death, and died in the faith.

Mr. Wm. E. Snyder, of West Landon, Ohio, says: For sometime past I had been severely afflicted with Rheumatism. Seeking an advertisement of St. Jacobs Oil, I procured a bottle, and I could feel the effect of the Oil upon the first application. I am now entirely well after using one bottle. —Wagon Co., Ohio Democrat.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of J. Monroe Taylor. This house has been established nearly 40 years, and their goods are celebrated for purity and strength. We would recommend a trial of their Gold Medal brand to all who desire superior cookeny.

—T. E. Riechy obtained the formula for his Anti-Malarial Pills, from one of the best physicians of America. For Chills, Malignant, Costiveness, Sick Headache, &c., nothing equals them. He has sold thousands of boxes, and is now putting them in the stores of the Green River country, hoping his friends will give them a trial.

Every Plow sold by Tracy warranted to do good work; all steel.

Young men should call at Anderson's Bazaar and see the samples and have their measures for a suit of Devil's Clothing. You will thus secure complete fits at New York prices.

Mr. Hiram C. Maddox, an honest, sober, industrious young man of McHenry, is this week announced as a candidate for Assessor, subject to the Democratic primary election. He is physically, mentally and morally well qualified for the position.

Our Cornwall friends who are in arrears with the Herald will please call on Mr. J. Will Cooper, at that place, and pay the arrearages. He has a statement of all subscription accounts, and is authorized to receive and receipt for money due this office.

Died, at the residence of Geo. W. Dinger, in Hartford, Monday, February 13, 1882, after a brief illness of about forty-eight hours, Miss Fannie Davis. Her remains were interred in the Hartford cemetery on Monday evening.

Every farmer in Ohio who is not a subscriber to the Herald should at once become a subscriber. We are offering in our Gift Distribution several farming implements, among others a two-horse Steel Plow, which can be seen at D. E. Tracy's shop, Hartford, Ky.

Mrs. U. Whipple, 371 Oregon Street, presents these facts: For six years I had suffered beyond all expression with Sciatic Rheumatism and tried every known remedy, but all to no purpose. At last I saw in the St. Jacobs Oil, an advertisement of the St. Jacobs Oil, tried it and am well. I can walk without limping and sleep free from pain. —Detroit Free Press.

Have you seen our handsome double case-stem-winding silver watch. Look in the show case of Z. Wayne Griffin & Co. and you will see it. It is a Swiss-made watch in every respect. It is one of C. P. Barnes & Co.'s best silver watches. Their brand upon it is a sufficient endorsement that it is genuine. Are you a subscriber to the Herald? If so, you have a chance to have this elegant watch given to you.

Time speeds away, away, away, Another hour and another day. And the first thing you know we will have our 2,000 subscribers to the Herald, and you will not be one of the number, and will not have a chance to participate in our Gift Distribution.

You want the paper anyhow, and had as well subscribe at once and secure a ticket. Are you going to pay us what you owe us anyhow some of these days, and why not do so in time to get in on the premium list?

Look at the beautiful gold watch in Z. Wayne Griffin & Co.'s show case. It is a double case-stem-winding, patent movement and regulator, 18 karats gold, and worth $450. It will be given away to some one of our subscribers. Those not subscribers to the Herald will have no chance to draw it, while every subscriber will have a chance. It costs you nothing to try, for the paper is worth $2 a year, and you get it at $1.50 and a chance at the prizes besides. Send us your subscription to the end of 1882. Reader, come-thou and do likewise.

Among the many valuable premiums in our Gift Distribution will be found the famous Volcanic Soda in the Green River country. It is a genuine Italian Soda, made by the celebrated Maggini, and is worth $5. We have already received it, including box and box, and will have it on exhibition soon. Every subscriber to the Herald should subscribe for the Herald and take a chance for this superior instrument. We presented this soda through D. P. Fauds, 521 Fourth Avenue, Louisville, Ky., who is known to be one of the leading dealers in the whole south and west in music and musical instruments. We have his guarantee that what we say of it is correct.

If you want a real handsome, all-steel plow, dress at fifteen cents a yard.

If you want a real handsome, all-steel dress in latest style colors, at 25 cts. a yard.

If you want to trim the above dresses with pure silk trimming at 50 cts. a yard.

If you want a pure, all-steel cashmere, in most fashionable colors, at 35 cts. a yard.

In short, if you want anything for less than you can buy it anywhere else, call at Anderson's Bazaar.

Distance lends enchantment, and hence some persons get away from home to get what they can get at home, and pay more for it, kind and quality considered. This is true in regard to job work, as well as many other things. We are prepared at this office to do all kinds of ordinary job work, have gone to great expense to prepare for it and can do any kind of job work that we are prepared to do at all, as low as the same kind of work can be got in any of the large cities. If you have your work done at home you can see a specimen and correct errors or have changes made to suit. Not so when you send it away. It is liable to have errors, and you do not know it until the whole job is printed and sent to you. Sometimes you will send off a job, which you can get at once if you have a good home office, and the way to have a good home office is to give it your work, then they can afford to, and will keep stock of material, presses, &c., necessary. It will not pay us to remain at all times prepared with presses, type, hands and material to do job work unless we get the work to do, and it will not pay us unless we get nearly all of the work needed in this region of the country. If we do just as good work, use just as good material, and for the same money, it does seem strange that parties will send their orders off to have their job work done. Yet they sometimes do it.

Go to Tracy's for Excelsior and Avery Plows; all steel, and can be laid.

Don't fail to attend the entertainment at College Hall next Friday night.

For all kinds of Fancy Groceries at low down figures go to the Red Front.

A. B. Robertson, of Burksville, Va., sent T. E. Riechy $5 more for his Pills, and says they are in great demand in the Old Dominion.

The closing exercises of Miss Alberta Murray's school, near Horton, will come off next Friday afternoon, and will no doubt be very interesting.

Pink-Eye is still raging in town. Mr. Jas. A. Carter lost another horse to the disease, and Mr. J. P. Sandefur and Mr. J. S. Vaughn have each a horse with the same disease.

A job lot of Ladies' Shoes are being offered at wonderfully low prices at Anderson's Bazaar. They are only to be had in numbers three and a half and four.

The entertainment to be given by the citizens of town to the literary societies of Hartford College, next Friday night, bids fair to be a pleasant occasion.

James Medford, who was arrested near Magna a week or two ago, on a charge of moonshining, has been sent to the Louisville jail, in default of bail in the sum of $1,000.

The entertainment to be given by the citizens of Hartford, next Friday night, to the literary societies of Hartford College, promises to be quite an interesting affair. The programme appears in this issue.

The Democratic candidates for the various county offices subject to the primary election on the 11th of March opened up the canvass at Hartford last Monday. There are about thirty of them, and "more to follow."

For free, rapid, healthy and natural digestion, use Hall's Digestive Salt at the table instead of ordinary table salt. By its use you obtain that perfect health which comes from a sound stomach. See advertisement.

Henry Clay Wornall, agent of the Adams Express Company at Brandenburg, defaulted to the tune of $18,000 and left last December. He has recently been arrested in Philadelphia, and will be brought back to Brandenburg for trial.

If you never have subscribed for the Herald, here you cannot afford to decline to do so longer for the paper is well worth all you pay for it, and we give you a chance to secure a handsome premium, worth from $1 to $150 besides. Subscribe at once.

Hon. B. P. Hooker closed a five months' school at Liberty Seminary, Ind. last Saturday. The inclement weather prevented proper preparation for the closing exercises, but they were quite entertaining notwithstanding.

Hooker is a very successful teacher.

If you want a first-class one-horse plow, you had better subscribe at once for the Herald. You thus have a chance to get one for nothing in our Gift Distribution. You can see the plow by calling at Dan E. Tracy's shop, Hartford, Ky.

We know of a merchant in Hartford who has the promise of the exclusive patronage of every candidate for Assessor in Ohio county, providing he is elected. Anderson's Bazaar, however, has a still better thing. It will get the exclusive patronage of all who are elected, and expects to make a fortune in consequence.

Barrett & Brother, Hartford, Ky., have had more than ten years' experience in Fire Insurance. They represent none but the very best and most liberal companies, will insure your property as low as the lowest, and insure it so that if you have a loss you will have no squabble or controversy, your loss promptly adjusted and paid. Insure with them and be safe.

"Westward the Star of Empire takes its way" but to the Herald office everybody in this Green River world are taking their way just now and subscribing for the Herald. Why? Because they say it is a good paper, their local paper, gives them the news of the day, is worth $2.00 a year but they get it for only $1.50 and get a ticket besides toward subscriber giving a chance in the Herald's Gift Distribution of not less than $500 worth of valuable useful and ornamental goods. They appreciate this liberality of the publishers and are showing it by a liberal patronage.

The Standford Hotel, Louisville, Ky., is now one of the best hotels in the place. It has been enlarged about fifty per cent. during the past year, has a new and spacious dining hall, a nice reading-room, a very neat and comfortable reception room, an excellent elevator, and is perfect in every respect. The management of the hotel is unsurpassed, the fare good as appetite could wish for, and in every respect the hotel is perfect. It is near the L. & N. depot, where all northern and western Kentucky visitors reach and leave the city, and is very convenient, as it saves back or omnibus fares. In short, the Standford offers more and better accommodations for less money than any other hotel in Louisville. Do not take our word for it, but try it and be convinced.

Look in the show window of Z. Wayne Griffin & Co. and you will see a fine Triple-Plate Crozier with call-bell. This is one of the premiums in the Herald's Gift Distribution. It cost $7.50 and was purchased from the well known Jewelry House of C. P. Barnes & Co., Louisville, Ky. Surely everybody in this region of country will try to get this premium at its cost. You want your county paper anyhow. We furnish you the kind at a paper that generally sells at $2, and never less than $1.50 per year and give you a chance at between $500 and $1000 worth of useful valuable and ornamental goods besides all for $1.50. Subscribe at once and secure a chance. Remember we close the list when 2500 subscribers are received and they are coming quite rapidly.

Rough creek is higher at this point than it has been for years. Saw-log men have an easy time.

For diseases of the nerves, brain, blood and lungs a superior medicine to all others is Riechy's Iron Bitters.

The most simple and complete window-fixture you ever saw are the "Buddies." They are quite cheap, and sold at Anderson's Bazaar.

The cards are out announcing the marriage of Mr. J. R. Maddox and Miss Maggie Sutton. The ceremony will be performed at the residence of the bride's stepfather, Mr. Charles Hunt, near Fordville, to-day.

Write to Mrs. Lydia E. Plunkham, No. 233 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass., for pamphlets relative to the curative properties of her Vegetable Compound in all female complaints.

"Now's the day and now's the hour" to pay us what you owe us and pay your subscription to the end of 1882, for by so doing you are entitled to participate in the distribution of our prizes, amounting in value to over $500.

Do you wish to purchase picture frames, carvings, mirrors, engravings, paintings, &c., of the newest styles and latest patterns, at prices that defy competition? If so, call on or address E. L. Denhart, No. 116 West Market St., Louisville, Ky. See his card in this paper.

Do not buy cheap medicine on the score of economy. The best are none too good for the sick, and are the cheapest. Such are the Cherry Pectoral, the Sarsaparilla and other standard remedies of Dr. J. T. Ayer & Co. They are worth all their cost, and should be in every home.

Mr. N. L. Fitch, of the firm of Fitch & Merrill, tailors and clothiers, Louisville, Ky., will be here February 24th inst., with a full line of samples for spring and summer clothing for men, youths and boys. They are first-class tailors, give entire satisfaction in the quality of goods, and prices, and our people will find it to their interest to reserve their orders until Mr. Fitch comes. Remember the time: February 24th, 1882.

We are indebted to Mr. W. H. Williams for a nice treat last Saturday night. He visited this office and gave us some very sweet music on our Italian violin. Mr. Williams is an excellent violinist and pronounces our violin a first class one. Remember that we have this violin to give away to a Subscriber of the Hartford Herald. It is worth $35, and is from that reliable dealer in music and musical instruments, D. P. Fauds, Fourth Avenue, Louisville, Ky. If you are a subscriber you take a chance to get it in our Gift Distribution.

Crittenden Jacobs and Miss Eleanor Keown.
Nelson Coleman and Susan Griffin.
A Card.

To the Deputies of Ohio County:
FELLOW-CITIZENS:—Owing to my present business relations, I resort to this method of presenting myself to the public as a candidate for the office of Assessor of Ohio county.

There being a probability of an early convention of the Democratic party to which I shall submit my name for nomination as a candidate for the above-said office, I deem this a fitting manner of placing my name before you, that you, in your wisdom, may have ample opportunity of determining whether or not I possess the qualifications necessary to make an efficient public servant.

It has ever been my object in all my dealings with the public to merit by my attention to every trust confided in me the approbation of all.

I shall, if possible, approach my fellow-citizens personally before the convention, in the meantime, I beg to make a kindly consideration of my claims by each member of the party.

Respectfully,
MARTIN STANFORD.

A correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal, a well-known authority in such matters, says:

I have been experimenting quite extensively with upland rice, and the results have convinced me that it is a coming crop of much importance, even for many sections of our country, where it is not now raised. The slightest idea that its growth could be made so much as a late possibility with them, concerning this last I wish to say a few words in the readers of the Courier-Journal, because I know that the paper circulates largely in many of the very sections to which I allude. I feel that it is my duty to do so.

That upland rice has been so little cultivated in this country up to the present time, and that its culture has been confined to bounds so limited, both are matters much to be wondered at, for it will grow with most decided success on any soil capable of producing other corn or wheat, and it is entirely at home in any land where warm season is long enough to give five months without frost. This would make it a sure crop anywhere below the 35th parallel, and well worth trying as far north as the 40th—say anywhere south of a line drawn through Philadelphia, Columbus, Indianapolis, Springfield, St. Joseph, and so on through northern Kansas. This parallel passes directly through the heart of the great rice region of China, where rice is almost the sole support of millions of people. The five months' rule will always hold good; the latest variety known never fails of being ready for harvest within five months from the time of sowing. A southern climate favors it no more than a northern one; all it requires is a frostless season long enough to admit of its maturing. And even should a spring frost take it off to the ground, no harm would result other than a brief check in growth, for it would come out promptly from the root, and flourish the same as if nothing had happened; but a fall frost would ruin it.

And the wonder that upland rice should be so much neglected increases when we reflect that the crop is decidedly a profitable one—perhaps the most so of any of the small grains grown in America. Land capable of bringing in thirty bushels of corn to the acre will bring from fifty to sixty bushels of rough rice. This is usually worth one dollar per bushel on the farm. The hulling process will leave us about half the number of bushels that we had in the rough, after the miller has taken out his toll for the preparation. Say the acre has yielded us twenty-five bushels of rice—cleaned rice, this will weigh about 1,200 pounds, which at eight cents per pound, the usual retail price, would be worth $200. If we suppose it to be six cents per pound, we still have a product worth $75. Then in addition to the rice we have the straw, which is much larger in quantity than that of either wheat or oats, and very different in character. It is a soft, spongy straw, highly relished by stock, and said to be almost as nutritious as the best quality of hay.

The worst discouragement to rice culture in many localities would lie in the inconvenience of getting it to a rice mill for hulling and preparation. Once the people should get to raising it in quantities sufficient to create a demand for mills, a supply would come of course. I put to rest the idea that it is necessary for the planter in the business to prepare his rice at home, as is now done by small growers in many portions of the lower south. The rice is an inexpensive and exceedingly simple one. A cross-section of ten inches in diameter and about the same in depth is turned into a black of wood to serve as a mortar. Into this the rough rice is placed, when it is beaten by hand with a wooden pestle weighing some four or five pounds. After a few minutes beating the hull separates from the grain, and may then be readily removed as chaff by exposure to a slight draft of air. Some persons rig the pestle to a spring-pole, which greatly reduces the labor of beating. The prepared on this rule plan is thought to be much better in point of flavor than such as has passed through a regular mill. In China it is almost all prepared by hand with a mortar and pestle.

The culture of upland rice is extremely simple. My plan is 1. Put the ground in good order by deep breaking and thoroughly pulverizing; 2. Lay out rows with a shallow-running plow, three feet apart; 3. So soon as spring is all danger of a freeze is over still in the seed, thinning, covering from two to three inches with a plow of horse; 4. Bar off when rice is four or five inches high, and follow with hoe, removing weeds and grass, and chopping out to a stand of about eight inches asunder, leaving two or three stalks in the hill; 5. Throw back the furrow and plow out the middles, running shallow; and 6. If weeds seem to be getting another damaging start, which seldom happens, as the rice covers the ground and takes care of itself, scratch them down, and that is the last of it. The culture must always be leveled and shadowed. Half a bushel of seed will sow an acre. It is a wonderful growth to stand or branch up from the base a single stalk will often increase to twenty or thirty. The harvesting and threshing does not differ from that of all other kinds of small grain.

There are several varieties of the upland rice, as the "Paddy," the "Silver-hull," the "Honduras," the "Yunnan," the "Chinese," and so on. After having tried them all I have settled down to the Yunnan as being the best, because the earliest, ripening some three or four weeks sooner than either of the other kinds. It is a very white rice, with large, full grains. The stalk is not so large and tall as that of some other varieties, but the head is long and heavy, threshing out thrushes as to yield. Dry and unmarketable as the past summer was the Yunnan gave the sixty-five bushels of rough rice to the acre.

Any of our readers who would like to try the cultivation of this rice can obtain a package of the genuine seed by simply sending their address, with a stamp to pay return postage, to J. P. Seale, McLeansboro, Illinois. Mr. S. has none of the seed for sale. The simply obtained a small quantity of it to distribute to such as desire to give it a trial. It will cost you nothing but the postage.

A Cross Baby.

Nothing is so conducive to a man's remaining a bachelor as stopping for one night at the house of a married friend and being kept awake for five or six hours by the crying of a cross baby. All cross and crying babies need only Hop Bitters to make them well and smiling. Young men remember this.

Disappearance of the Larger Animals.

Paris Action, one of the leading journals devoted to the popularization of natural history, deplores the rapid disappearance and threatened extinction of the larger species of animals of the world over. Since man has been the competitor the progressive diminution of their numbers has been very rapid, and the present age may witness their entire disappearance. The journal notices the fact that since the competition offered by man, more formidable than any other they have had to meet, many species of the larger animals have already become extinct, and many of those which still have living representatives are daily diminishing in numbers.

The animals which are unfortunately doomed to speedy destruction comprise those species which are hunted with profit, or those whose existence is dangerous to that of man. In the struggle they are called upon to sustain for their existence they labor under the special disadvantages, as compared with smaller animals, that they require more abundant supplies of food, and that their reproductive powers are greatly inhibited.

The great flesh eaters are already fast disappearing before the bullets of hunters. The whales and other great mammals are becoming scarce; the largest of the deer family, the stag, is less widely distributed than formerly; the largest of wild cattle, the aurochs, which once ranged over the whole of Europe, is now only found in the forests of Lithuania and Moldavia; the ibex no longer covers the peaks with boundless herds; the great antelope is disappearing from South America, and the kangaroo from Australia.

A Wrong Idea.

Many persons having gotten the wrong idea that hops are strengthening, have taken to drinking beer and ale very freely. The consequence is they feel better for a short time, but when the reaction comes they are much weaker than before. If you can take hops, by adding all malt and ale to the beverage and put your trust in that temporary preparation of iron and vegetable matter called Brown's Iron Bitters. It gives real health and strength to every part of the body, and restores the nervous system to its proper standard.

Caught on a Bridge.

Several days ago when I appeared in the Courier-Journal about their being turned gray by a sudden fright, and receded to a white-wash, a reporter in this city met a reporter and remarked: "I know of another instance of hair being turned gray by fright, which is even more remarkable than the one mentioned in the paper. About fifteen years ago, young man named Henry Rickards, who lived at Terre Haute, Indiana, was going home one evening about half past eight to a friend's house, walking along the railroad track. Some little distance from town was a very high trestle-work over a creek, there being no plank placed across for walking, so that people had to go over on the ties. Rickards was walking along at a lively rate, and when he arrived at the bridge he did not stop to think that a train coming in was then due, but being in a hurry to get home he started to walk across the cross-ties. He had gotten nearly half way across the bridge, when the train came slipping around a curve at a lively rate. He saw the train at once, and started to run, but saw that it was useless, as it would certainly overtake him before he could get off the bridge.

He was now in a terrible plight; to jump off was certain death, and he remained on the track the train would crush him to pieces. There was no work beneath the bridge for him to hang on to, so he saw that his only chance was to cling on to the small iron rods that passed under themselves. No time was to be lost, as the train was nearly on the end of the bridge. So he swung himself under the ties, and in a few moments was hanging on for dear life. The engineer had seen him just before he swung under the bridge, and tried to stop the train, but did not more than half succeed in his endeavor. In checking the speed of the train and made it a longer time passing over the trestle-work, and a number of them dropped out of his hands, leaving the ties in the form as he could not shake them off, and to let go would have been certain death.

For a trial was at length over, and nearly dead from fright and exhaustion with his hands burned in a terrible manner, Rickards swung himself upon the bridge again and ran home. When he reached there, his hair had not turned, but in a short time afterward it began to get gray, and by morning was almost perfectly white.

See Saw Him a Few Times.

of him of the President. A new rival has sprung up in the railroad racket agent, as was demonstrated at a Iowa station a few weeks ago.

"I want a ticket to A. . . " said a well-known lady of the town, just before train time.

"Twenty-four cents," responded the agent, working his sunglasses. She laid down a silver quarter. Being well acquainted with a practical joker, the agent drew from his pocket a glistening pin, button, passed it over with the ticket and swapped up the quarter.

"Is this a legal tender?" asked the lady quietly.

"Oh, yes," he answered, with mock gravity, "they are the money of the republic."

She pocketed it and got aboard, leaving the agent's face contorting with smiles.

A few days after he told it to a big old runner buying tickets to B. . . and while he was enjoying the evening, the lady appeared with

"Ticket for B. . . please."

"Twenty-four cents," with a smile, said the runner. He laid down the ticket, and laid down twenty-four dazzying points for his, exactly like the first.

"You said they were legal tender," they go a long way in supporting the family," she chirped sweetly, as she bowed from the presence of the man then Presidential prospect.

Then he set upon the legs of his nightgown runner.

How long it will.
